The Scientific Genealogy of Dr. Ness B. Shroff

Nineteen generations of doctoral mentorship ascending to Nicolaus Copernicus, and the scholars guided in turn.

I. THE LINE OF DESCENT

Each scholar was the doctoral advisor of the one beneath, read downward from Copernicus to Shroff in 1994. Where a scholar had two teachers the line divides and both routes are shown.

I · FERRARA, 1503

Nicolaus Copernicus — 1503
Doctorate in canon law, Ferrara · 1503 · studied Bologna, Padua, Kraków
"De revolutionibus orbium coelestium" · displaced the Earth from the centre of the cosmos
His own teachers — Leonhard von Dobschütz and Domenico Maria Novara — lie beyond this chart.

II · WITTENBERG, 1535

Georg Joachim Rheticus
Magister artium, Universität Wittenberg · 1535
The sole pupil of Copernicus; he persuaded his master to publish, and saw the book to press.
Second teacher: Johannes Volmar (Wittenberg 1515) — that line ends one step later.

III · LEIPZIG, 1567

Moritz Valentin Steinmetz
Magister artium and Dr. med., Universität Leipzig · 1550, 1567
"De Peste Capita Disputationis Ordinariae"
Second teacher: Johann Hoffmann — advisor unknown; the line ends there.

IV · LEIPZIG, 1582

Christoph Meurer
Magister artium, Universität Leipzig · 1582
"De Iride seu Arcu coelesti" — on the rainbow

V · LEIPZIG, 1604

Philipp Müller
Magister artium, Universität Leipzig · 1604
Professor of mathematics at Leipzig.

VI · LEIPZIG, 1650

Erhard Weigel
Dr. phil., Universität Leipzig · 1650
"De ascensionibus et descensionibus astronomicis dissertatio" · taught the young Leibniz at Jena

VII · ALTDORF, 1666

Gottfried Wilhelm Leibniz — 1666
Dr. jur., Universität Altdorf · 1666
"Disputatio Inauguralis de Casibus Perplexis in Jure" · co-inventor of the calculus

LEIBNIZ'S THREE OTHER TEACHERS

- Jakob Thomasius — Magister, Universität Leipzig · 1643
- Bartholomäus Schwendendörffer — Universität Leipzig
- Christiaan Huygens — Académie royale des sciences, Paris · 1676

The Mathematics Genealogy Project records four teachers for Leibniz. Only Weigel's line, above, climbs on to Copernicus.

VIII · PARIS

Nicolas Malebranche
Paris · philosopher and mathematician
The line divides here, and does not meet again until Poisson.

Malebranche taught two pupils; the descent runs through both, and the branches do not meet again until Poisson.

THE BASEL LINE · VIA LAGRANGE	THE PARIS LINE · VIA LAPLACE
IX · 1684 / 1687 Jacob Bernoulli Universität Basel · 1684 "Solutionem tergemini problematis arithmetici, geometrici et astronomici"	Pierre Varignon Collège Mazarin, Paris · 1687 Statics and the mechanics of forces.
X · 1694 / 1710 Johann Bernoulli Dr. med., Universität Basel · 1694 "Dissertatio Inauguralis Physico-Anatomica de Motu Musculorum"	Léonor Caron Collège Mazarin, Paris · 1710 Taught from Varignon's own lecture notes.

XII · TURIN / PARIS Joseph-Louis Lagrange no formal degree · Turin and Berlin Taught by Euler through their correspondence.	Pierre-Simon Laplace Paris · 1769 Celestial mechanics; analytic probability.

— the two lines reunite —

XIII · PARIS, 1800

Siméon Denis Poisson
École Polytechnique, Paris · 1800
Student of both Lagrange and Laplace — the two lines reunite here.

COLLATERAL LINE · NOT ANCESTORS

- Jean-Baptiste Joseph Fourier — Ph.D.
- Gustav P. Lejeune Dirichlet — Hon., Universität Bonn · 1827
- Rudolf O. S. Lipschitz — Dr. phil., Universität Berlin · 1853

Fourier, Dirichlet and Lipschitz were Poisson's students — relatives of the line, not steps within it.

Reading this chart. A scientific genealogy traces doctoral advisors rather than blood relation. Poisson studied under both Lagrange and Laplace, so the descent from Malebranche runs by two equal routes that reunite in 1800. The chart is capped at Copernicus because above him the record thins into mentorship reconstructed by scholars rather than degrees conferred. Sources: the Mathematics Genealogy Project, the original Scientific Genealogy tree, and Prof. Shroff's curriculum vitae.
